Styrene-butadiene rubber is currently the largest volume synthetic rubber, which is produced by the copolymerization of styrene and butadiene by either the emulsion or solution process. Although the emulsion process is clearly the current capacity leader, the solution process has better future potential due to versatility and flexibility in imparting desired polymer structure.

SBR is derived from two monomers, styrene and butadiene. The mixture of these two monomers is polymerized by two processes: from solution (S-SBR) or as an emulsion (E-SBR). E-SBR is more widely used. Emulsion polymerization. E-SBR produced by emulsion polymerization is initiated by free radicals.

Styrene-butadiene - Wikipedia

The production process of the new solution styrene-butadiene rubber is based on anionic co-polymerization of butadiene and styrene in a hydrocarbon solvent, in the presence of a lithium catalyst. We manufacture rubbers with varying Mooney viscosity, bound styrene and vinyl structure content, oil-extended and dry.
